

Basic Detail Report

4-9-C
Boston, Arizona
February 4, 1943
433

Dear Mrs. Whitney,

There is not a drop of ink in the house nor at the canteen, so I hope you will excuse the pencil for writing in and not find it too hard to read.

It is 11:00 P.M. and Dorothy and I are home here waiting, in hopes that the shower water will be hot enough soon. Now that the weather is so cold, everyone seems to take hot showers before going to bed. As a result there is never enough hot water unless we go very, very early or else very, very late. I dread the thought of bathing tonight, tho' because I'm all skinned up and I'm afraid the 'hurts' are going to sting. This morning I took a pretty flop. I tripped, as I was running in answer to the breakfast gong, over a mound of sand and gravel. But, altho' my knees and elbows felt rather raw,

[Letter to Mrs. Whitney from Louise Fukuda | February 4, 1943]

Date
1943

Medium
paper, ink

Description
3-page handwritten letter on blue paper written on recto and verso from Fumiko Fukuda to Mrs. Whitney on February 4, 1943.